

Emissions per person fell in developed countries and rose in developing countries

